Legislation in various states and territories and the Commonwealth of Australia restricts the information that can be disclosed about a person's court history unless specific exemptions apply under law. These legislative exemptions can include specific types of employment, voluntary work, licences or membership of a profession. Therefore, the information provided may not include all of the person's convictions or findings of guilt by a court. Generally, the person is not required by law to disclose these spent convictions unless the type of employment, position, licence or professional membership is exempt under the relevant laws. The term "no disclosable court outcomes" should be interpreted as meaning no police record.

This check has been conducted on the basis of the name and date of birth details supplied by the person and given above. Although every care has been taken to ensure the accuracy of the check, it cannot be guaranteed that the information provided relates to the person named. The information is current at the date of issue of the certificate and should not be taken to be a complete record of the person's disclosable court outcomes beyond that date.

The information contained in this document is valid as at date displayed.
This certificate is produced on secure paper to provide proof of authenticity.
Several security features are integrated within the document, some of which are described overleaf.
The absence of any of the security features indicates this is not an original document.
